From Monday 22 June, Queensland, along with the Commonwealth and all other Australian states and territories, will enter a new phase to manage the outbreak of Human Swine Influenza.

The new phase is called PROTECT.

The PROTECT phase recognises that Human Swine Influenza is not as severe for the general population as originally envisaged. Most people are making a rapid and full recovery. The new phase focuses on protecting those people who are most at risk of developing severe illness from Human Swine Influenza.

We would like to reassure conference delegates that we continue to monitor the H1N1 influenza situation on the basis of advice from the authorities. The official position of The University of Queensland as at 15 June, 2009 is that it is business as usual.

We have been advised that we do not need to request voluntary Quarantine for persons coming from swine flu affected countries (or Victoria). The status may change before June 30 but we are advised that travel is unlikely to be restricted in any way.

On the basis of this advice we are proceeding with conference plans.

We will keep delegates informed should the situation change.
